Recruitment Privacy Notice & Candidate Acknowledgment

Candidate information handling during recruitment, evaluation, selection, and pre-employment processing

1. Purpose of This Notice

This notice explains how the Company may collect, use, store, protect, and disclose personal information relating to individuals who apply for or are considered for employment, contract, consulting, internship, temporary, or other professional opportunities. It is intended to provide candidates with a clear understanding of how recruitment information is handled throughout the hiring process.

2. Who This Notice Applies To

This notice applies to job applicants, prospective candidates, referred candidates, and individuals participating in the Company's recruitment, interview, assessment, or selection process.

3. Information We May Collect

Depending on the position and stage of recruitment, the Company may collect information that is reasonably relevant to evaluating a candidate, including:

- Name, contact details, location, and preferred method of communication;
- Resume or CV information, employment history, education, training, certifications, professional licenses, and skills;
- Information provided in applications, interviews, assessments, questionnaires, and recruitment correspondence;
- Professional references and information used to verify employment history or qualifications;
- Information from publicly available professional sources where permitted by law; and
- Background or screening information where relevant to the role, legally permitted, and subject to any required notice or authorization.

Sensitive onboarding information - such as payroll, tax, banking, benefit, or identity-verification documents - should generally be requested only when the candidate reaches the appropriate hiring or onboarding stage.

4. How Candidate Information May Be Used

Candidate information may be used for legitimate recruitment and business purposes, including:

- Reviewing qualifications and suitability for a role;
- Communicating about applications, interviews, assessments, scheduling, and recruitment status;
- Verifying credentials, work history, references, and professional qualifications;
- Conducting authorized screening or background checks where applicable;
- Maintaining recruitment records and meeting legal, compliance, audit, or reporting obligations; and
- Preparing an offer, engagement, or onboarding process if a candidate is selected.

5. Sharing of Candidate Information

Access to candidate information should be limited to persons or organizations with a legitimate recruitment, compliance, security, or business need. Information may be shared with authorized Company personnel, recruitment providers, screening providers, professional advisers, technology or document-service providers, regulators, or government authorities where reasonably necessary or legally required.

The Company does not authorize the unnecessary use or disclosure of candidate information for unrelated purposes.

6. Data Security

The Company uses reasonable administrative, technical, and organizational safeguards designed to protect candidate information against unauthorized access, loss, misuse, alteration, or disclosure. Candidates should also take reasonable care when sending confidential or sensitive information during recruitment.

7. Retention of Recruitment Records

Candidate information may be retained for as long as reasonably necessary to complete the recruitment process, maintain appropriate business records, consider candidates for future opportunities where appropriate, resolve questions or disputes, and meet applicable legal or regulatory requirements. Information that is no longer required should be securely deleted or disposed of in accordance with applicable policies and requirements.

8. Candidate Privacy Rights

Depending on applicable law and jurisdiction, candidates may have rights relating to certain personal information held by the Company, including rights to request access, correction, deletion, restriction, or other permitted action. Requests may be directed to the Company's designated recruitment, privacy, or human-resources contact.

9. Confidential Recruitment Information

During the hiring process, candidates may receive information identified as confidential or reasonably understood to be confidential. Such information should be used only for purposes connected with the recruitment process and should not be disclosed to unauthorized persons unless disclosure is legally required.

10. Changes to This Notice

The Company may update this notice from time to time to reflect changes in recruitment practices, technology, business operations, or applicable legal requirements. Any material change affecting the handling of candidate information will be addressed in accordance with applicable requirements.

Candidate Acknowledgment

I acknowledge that I have received and reviewed this Recruitment Privacy Notice & Candidate Acknowledgment. I understand how information provided during the recruitment process may be collected, used, protected, retained, and disclosed for legitimate recruitment and related business purposes.

I further understand that signing this acknowledgment does not constitute an offer or guarantee of employment, create an employment contract, or alter the terms of any future written employment or engagement agreement.
